

Harlequin, a leading global publisher of books, is proudly celebrating over 70 years of empowering authors to share stories that have entertained audiences worldwide for decades. Since its inception in 1949 in Winnipeg, Canada, Harlequin has sold approximately 6.8 billion books. Today, as a division of HarperCollins, the second-largest consumer book publisher globally, the Toronto-based company, with offices in New York and London, publishes more than 100 titles monthly in print, ebook and audio formats. These books are written by approximately 1,100 talented authors worldwide, offering readers a broad range of editorial, from general and women's fiction to romance, young adult, nonfiction and more. For more information, visit Harlequin.com.

Harlequin's worldwide recognition and appeal allow the publisher to promote its authors and sell its books around the world. Through HarperCollins' global publishing program, Harlequin titles are published in 30 countries and 15 languages.

Harlequin is unique in the publishing world as a destination brand for romance novels, with 65% of readers thinking of Harlequin first when they think of romance novels. Harlequin's accomplishments as a publisher are also highlighted by its tremendous success on bestseller lists and highly recognizable author brands in its trade imprints—MIRA Books, Canary Press, Inkyard Press, Carina Press, Park Row Books, Graydon House, Hanover Square Press, Worldwide Mystery and Gold Eagle. Harlequin has a vast global reach, a successful direct-to-consumer business and a highly engaged digital community making it easy for readers to find books whenever, wherever, and however they like to read.

As a vital and progressive company, Harlequin seeks new ways to nurture talent—from bestselling authors to emerging writers—and to provide an author-centric publishing experience. Aspiring authors are encouraged to visit WriteForHarlequin.com. Harlequin is continually innovative in a fast-changing environment, providing many avenues for great stories to find their audiences.

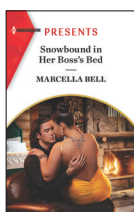

Harlequin is actively working on publishing more diverse and inclusive voices so that readers see themselves reflected in the broad range of authors and stories it publishes. Initiatives and outreach to increase diversity, equity and inclusion are described on its website.

HARLEQUIN TRADE PUBLISHING

A dynamic and growing group of imprints dedicated to publishing the best in commercial fiction and narrative nonfiction. Offering a broad and vibrant range of editorial, Harlequin's trade program is driven by a singular vision: to introduce readers to bold, imaginative stories that entertain, foster discussion, challenge preconceptions and stimulate new ways of perceiving the world.

Joining Harlequin's Trade Publishing group in 2004, HQN defined the romance genre by discovering and building the careers of the most recognizable authors in the genre. Today, as Canary Street Press, the list has expanded to include modern commercial love stories, Rom Coms and diverse romantic fiction. While CSP will continue to publish mass market paperback originals, the new editorial vision highlights trade paperback and hardcover formats, with a focus on inclusive stories that represent everyone's happy ever after.

Graydon House Books is a select hardcover and trade paperback imprint dedicated to publishing book club-worthy fiction with strong commercial appeal. Graydon House novels range in tone from lighthearted relationship fiction to emotional tearjerkers, domestic suspense to historical dramas, and is home to an exciting mix of debut voices and established bestsellers.

Hanover Square Press draws its name from New York City's Hanover Square, which was once known as "Printing House Square" for the printers, publishers and booksellers who thrived there in the 1700s and early 1800s. From crime, thrillers and high-concept fiction to narrative history, journalism and memoir—here you'll find books full of engaging ideas, unique subjects and fast-paced stories. Books that we just can't stop thinking—and talking—about.

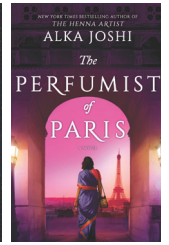

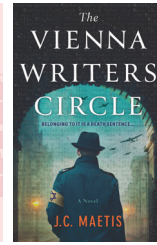

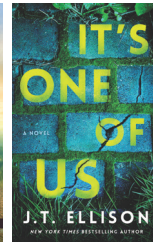

Inkyard Press publishes smart, engaging Middle Grade and YA fiction across a variety of genres, from realistic contemporary to epic fantasy. Inkyard is passionate about publishing diverse voices and giving readers a chance to see themselves and each other in the books published, with grateful acknowledgement to the work of Dr. Rudine Bishop on the importance of "windows" and "mirrors" in literature.

HARLEQUIN TRADE PUBLISHING

MIRA Books is known for turning established and emerging authors into bestsellers. MIRA publishes approximately 50 original titles per year in hardcover, trade and mass market, featuring highly commercial fiction across all genres, including but not limited to women's fiction, historical fiction, thrillers and suspense.

Park Row Books was launched in 2017 and is dedicated to publishing a selective list of voice-driven and thought-provoking books across a variety of genres, from upmarket fiction and suspense to historical novels and narrative nonfiction. With a broad list of bestselling and award-winning fiction and nonfiction, Park Row aspires to publish books that have lasting impact, that inspire, empower, and entertain. Park Row takes immense pride in fostering free expression, inclusive ideas and diverse voices.
